

HOUSE DIJK, BLAUWESTAD, THE NETHERLANDS

JAGERJANSSEN ARCHITECTS

www.jagerjanssen.nl

Completion: 2007, Gross floor area: 3422 sq. ft. / 318 m² (including basement), Photos: SAPH | Rob de Jong.

Left: Front façade facing garden. | Right: Floor plans and section.

This unique barn house design has made a modern statement in its small town of just 1,500 homes. Overlooking water and surrounded by a magnificent landscape, this contemporary design comes in the form of an old-fashioned barn with a newfangled twist. Wrapped in clear “skin”, this house features a roof and façade of anthracite-colored corrugated sheets, strategically placed so as to allow entry of natural light and the surrounding views. Inside, this barn house features a “soft” look with walls clad in lightwoods, and a spacious layout. The home’s basement level is slightly above grade, creating a podium and placing the main level one meter above the ground, lending it a unique floating feeling.

From left to right, from above to below:
Exterior view to house within surroundings, interior view, view to basement and porch.
Right: Detail façade.